Mr. Lash Miller began, Monday evening, his duties as night operator at East Clayton, having passed a successful examination in Columbus that day. He left for position of operator on the Z. & W. at Crooksville.

The holder of the lucky ticket, No. 440, which drew the prize pair of roller skates at the rink, Saturday night, April 7, was Mr. Harry O. Wright. The skates are of the best Richardson make, with aluminum rollers.

Mr. Arch Kennard visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Kennard, for several days, leaving on Monday for Athens, where he will be employed by the Bell Telephone Company as lineman. He has just resigned a similar position with the Citizens Company, of Lancaster.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. A single liver gives a coated tongue, bad breath, constipated bowels. Correct all these by giving small, laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar coated.

Falsehood, Not Criticism.

The wail of Huls about our "un-called for" defense of the Mayor of Logan, against the Huls "criticism" of some official acts, is indeed pitiable. He says the Mayor is subject to criticism and must expect it. The Mayor of Logan is happy to be criticized for it puts him on his mettle to do better, but it put us on our mettle to retaliate when the Mayor was falsified against. We were not defending him as against honest criticism, for he must expect that, but when the Huls organ said that if the Murray City fighters had been poor country boys, the Mayor would have given them the limit, we admit that it raised our ire in the Mayor's defense. This falsehood was flaunted, in the face of the records showing seven cases of fighting in Logan all of whom were fined $1.00 and costs by this Mayor, and three of them were poor country boys.

Falsehoods are easy for Huls to speak, and we can but expect it of him, but he did accidentally let one truth slip out. He said Mayor Dollison was the "standard bearer of the temperance people." This is a kindly admission on the part of Huls, and the Mayor should be proud of it. No higher compliment could be paid to a citizen, than to represent the sober, law-abiding people of a community.

Huls would seek to disturb that confidence; to mar the hopes of a good people for a temperance administration in this town, by attempting to drive the village executive into the ranks of the saloon interests, for political harangue and partisan clash; he would band the Mayor and the saloon interests together in his falsifying publication, sacrificing the hopes of enforcing the laws in Logan, just for the sake of his jealous, noisy, partisan policies. We will say this for the Mayor, that you can't accomplish that end, Mr. Huls. Logan's present executive will go right along fighting the saloons and gambling dens of Logan with more zeal with each new battle won; it will take smarter people than Huls to waver Logan's Mayor from his duty in fighting the evils of this village.

What interest Huls has in trying to array the temperance people against their representative executive, and thus chill the order of their enthusiasm, is in keeping with his spirit of hypocrisy; feign friendship, and seeking to destroy. Did he vote for the "temperance candidate" for Mayor? Of course he did not, and thus by his own statement of "standard bearers," he must have lined up with the saloon people. He says the temperance people of Logan elected Mayor Dollison. Is Huls one of the temperance people? Did he vote for Dollison? If not, he must belong to the saloon crowd, and then why should he growl if the Mayor, as alleged by him, should favor saloon men. If Huls belongs to the saloon crowd, he should have rejoiced if the Mayor favored one of his crowd. If Huls voted against the "temperance candidate," he surely should have no criticism of the "temperance Mayor," should favor his side.

Why did Huls not "criticize" Mayor Tritsch in his twenty-two months administration, which administration, according to Huls' paper, necessitated the bringing out of a "temperance candidate." Why did he vote for Tritsch and run his paper for him, if the opposition was the "temperance candidate," and Huls is so enthusiastic for temperance and the rights of temperance people. Is Ex Mayor Tritsch enjoying Huls' flaunting him as the saloon candidate?

The whole business in a nutshell is this, that Huls is trying to array the Mayor against the temperance people and the temperance people against the Mayor, and ruin this administration for the cause of temperance. He did all he could against the "temperance candidate" for Mayor, and he is doing all he can against the "temperance Mayor." He would sacrifice the hope of a law-enforcing administration in Logan, for the sake of his aggrandizement of personal jealousy and snarling nature. The Mayor will go on as he started. He represents the "temperance people," not Huls, and he will not disappoint them. He will fight the saloon and gambling of this town as long as he lives.

EGYPTIAN CIVILIZATION.

Its Origin One of the Unsolved Enigmas of the World.

The origin of Egyptian civilization has been the enigma of the world for the past twenty-five centuries. Presenting no historic or even mythic infancy, it appears before the world at once as a highly civilized and organic community centuries before Moses was a boy. Upon this subject Renan says, "Egypt has no archaic epoch, but suddenly takes its place in the world in all its matchless magnificence, without father and without mother and as clean apart from all evolution as if it had dropped from the unknown heavens." Would not an explanation at least feasible be found in the hypothesis that it received its civilization from some source no longer existing? Menes, the first historic figure in its long line of dynasties, the outlines of whose personality loom up wavering indefinite, but grandly impressive, against the deep mythic background of prehistoric story at least 4500 B. C., conceived and executed enterprises extorting the warmest admiration from the best engineers of the twentieth century. Did he not alter the course of the Nile by vast embankments to gain stable foundations other than the shifting sands for his sacred city of Memphis and construct the artificial lake of Moeris, 450 miles in circumference and 350 feet deep, as a reservoir for the waters of the Nile?

Look, too, at the colossal achievements of his successors in architecture, sculpture, engineering, astronomical, political, medical, social and military science, to say nothing of navigation and theology. Witness the ruins of the Labyrinth recorded by Herodotus, which had 3,000 chambers, half of them above ground and half below, a combination of courts, chambers, colonnades, statues and pyramids. Witness the wonders of the magnificent temple of Karnak, which still awakens our admiration, a temple, as Denon says, wherein the Cathedral of Notre Dame, in Paris, could be set inside one of its halls and yet not touch the walls. Witness the sublime pyramids originally built in honor of the sun god Ra and for use in astronomical observatories, the splendors of Memphis, Thebes and Heliopolis, of the sphinx and the obelisks, the statuary and the numerous temples with the ruins of which the land is still filled.—Exchange.

The Beaver's Tooth.

No carpenter's chisel can do more effective work than is turned out with ease and neatness by the beaver's tooth. This is the principal tool with which these patient, clever builders construct their dams. The outer surface of the tooth is a scale of very hard enamel, while the body of it is of softer dentine. As the softer substance wears away in use the end of the tooth takes a chisel-like bevel, leaving a thin, slightly projecting edge of hard enamel as sharp as any carpenter's tool fresh from the oilstone. The thin scale of enamel gives keenness, the softer dentine supplies strength, and thus the combination forms a formidable tool, which actually sharpens itself by use.

Reassured.

A learned professor, noted for his power of concentration and for his absorption in the matter at hand, came home one night, says a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger, still concentrated on the thought of the evening. He had scarcely pulled the bed covers over himself when he heard a slight noise.

"Is some one there?" he asked. "No, professor," replied the intruder under the bed, knowing his peculiarity; "there is no one here."

The professor gave a sigh of relief and turned over to sleep. "I was almost certain I had heard some one," he remarked to himself.

A Scented Message.

When Lord Randolph Churchill was leader of the house of commons he was a somewhat unconventional occupant of that exalted post, according to a story in the biography by his son.

"I am commanded by the queen," said Lord Idlesleigh, writing to Lord Randolph from Balmoral, "to say that her majesty was greatly amused by the contents of your dispatch box last night. I suppose you won't understand this message without some explanation—there was a liberal sprinkling of tobacco in it!"

Sticking to the Point.

Mother—Have you kept your baby brother nice and quiet while I've been gone, Tommy?

Tommy—Yes, mother.

Mother—Has he cried any at all?

Tommy—He hasn't made a sound, mother, not the whole time.

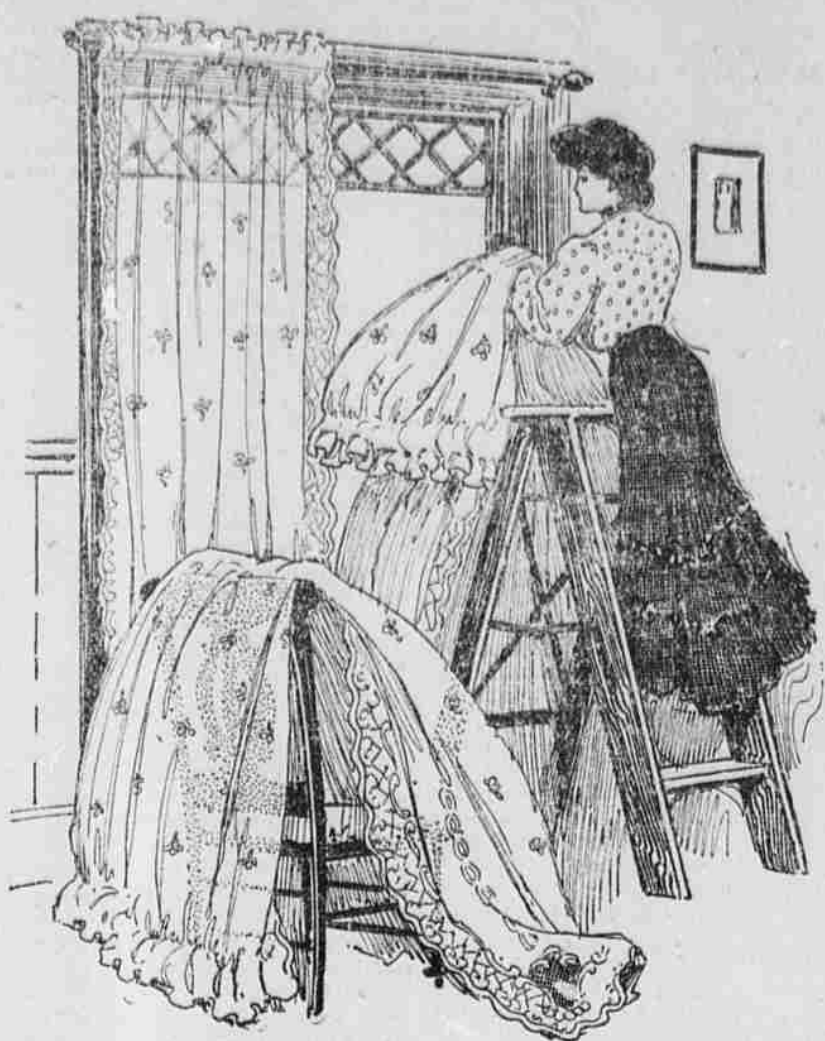

Mother—What did you give him to amuse himself with?

Tommy—The mutilage bottle, and he's been like a mouse since the first suck.—Baltimore American.

Heavy Tax Payer.

In looking up the tax duplicate we were astonished to know that George Vansickle, of Murray City is the largest individual taxpayer in this county. His taxes for this year are $476.80.

Creditors Meet.

At a meeting of the creditors of the Hocking Mfg. Co., bankrupt, before Referee E. D. Ricketts, Monday and Tuesday, an order for the private sale of the personal property was issued. The former appraisement of the estate was set aside, on motion, and John Tritsch, J. M. Floyd, and Daniel Ackers were appointed to make a new appraisement. The court refused to make an order of private sale of the real estate.
